PUTNAM

All hope abandoned, following this week's decision by the United States supreme court, Putnam's liquor dealers are in a number of instances preparing to give up the places of business they have been holding onto since July 1 of last year on the prospect of getting some degree of leeway of doing business under the Volstead act.

That the business ain't worth while, was frankly stated as his opinion by one of the city's well known dealers in falking about the matter on Thursday. "There isn't any use trying to sell Putnam people one-half of one per cent. brews," this former liquor dealer said; "they don't like the stuff, though some of them drink a little of it."

None of the dealers here seem enthusiastic over the prospect of selling the near-bears as a profitable business, so they are going out. There were a score of literated blaces in the state.

Some of these have been kept open for the sale of soft drinks and near beaars. Most of those who held licenses will give up their places now, however; some of these places have been closed for months, but the former deal-ers have been revine the ren!

well known resorts will be no more than a memory in the very near future.

It was announced Thursday that the Putnam chapter of the Red Cross has made available $500 for carrying on the work of the dental clinic established at the Isreal Putnam school. A few days since a gift of $100 from the Parent-Teachers' association. Teachers' association was presented for the same worthy purpose, so it is now evident that the work so promisingly begun will not only be carried on but given a wider scope during the coming school year. It is also of interest to note school year. It is also of interest to note that $300 has been given by the Pomfret Red Cross organization for the support of the dental clinic that will be established in the schools of that town. What already has been done in the way of giving attention to the teeth of the pupils in the lower grades of the Israel Putnam school has clearly established what a real need for undertaking the work that is now being so well organized and supported.
